November's Shining Star

UK Screen, the trade body that represents UK service companies to the film and television screen industries, has announced the winner of November's Shining Star award - Alyson Cale, Bookings Co-ordinator at The London Studios.

The competition saw more entries than ever this month and again it was a tight contest. Alyson was chosen for her success in launching a new project, Catch-Up TV, producing online content from ITV programming for on demand viewing.

Michael Gale, Bookings Manager at The London Studios comments on Alyson; "In the last 3 months Alyson has excelled by taking on greater responsibilities with no complaint and with great success. The additional work that she has undertaken has been done to the very highest standards and proven herself to be a real self-starter and for that reason she is a shining star."

Shining Stars, sponsored by Skillset, is an exciting recognition scheme designed to help motivate and reward non-creative employees within UK Screen member companies, who often fulfil invaluable but unsung roles. Companies simply nominate a member of staff whose performance has been over and above the call of duty and each month a new Shining Star is chosen. This years winners celebrated in style at the Vision Charity Ball on December 6th. Alyson's award marks the fourth of the monthly Shining Stars, which began in August 2008.

Due to the success of this recognition scheme in 2008, we are delighted to say we will be continuing this in 2009. Deadlines for entries to be announced soon...
